(H) Can you know / Hanunó'o? (1/1) [15 Points]

Hanunó'o is an abugida that, unusually, reads bottom to top rather than top to bottom. By default, full letters represent consonants + a. Lines above or below the letter change the vowel to i or u. A curved line to the bottom right of the letter (padmudpod) represents the absence of a vowel. Note that a and i on their own have their own letters, ∨ and ∨.
