Serious language puzzles that are surprisingly fun!

-Will Shortz, Crossword editor of The New York Times and Puzzlemaster for NPR
(A) Malteaser (1/1) [10 Points]

The definite article is given by the following rules (in order of priority):

1. ix before alveolar consonants
2. l before vowels or silent letters
3. li before consonant clusters
4. il otherwise

Note that j is considered a vowel.

Out of interest, these rules apply in several Semitic languages, notably Arabic (Maltese's ancestor). The letters in group (1) are called ‘sun’ letters (the word for sun is xemx) while the other consonants are called ‘moon’ letters (moon is qamar).

A1. ktieb and ġobon. You would expect li ktieb, because the noun begins with a consonant cluster, and you would expect iġ ġobon because ‘ġ’ is a voiced ‘č’ and so should belong to the dental-alveolar set.

A2.

- ix xkora (sack)
- iģ ġebla (stone)
- li mniher (nose)
- ix xemx (the sun)
- il kafè (coffee)
- l hena (happiness)
- l ġhajn (eye)
- it tama (hope)
- l ors (bear)
- il missier (father)
- il lura (back)
- il ilma (water)
- il beraq (lightning)
- in nar (fire)
- in nifs (breath)
- id dlam (darkness)
(B) Ndebele (1/1) [15 Points]

Ndebele verbs have prefixes to mark the subject:

<tr>
<td>ngi-</td>
<td>1st person singular</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>u-</td>
<td>2nd person singular or 3rd person singular</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>si-</td>
<td>1st person plural</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ba-</td>
<td>3rd person plural</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

There is also the prefix uku-, marking the infinitive, and the infix -ya-, which marks a verb with no “following” word, either an object or an adverb. It is still used when the verb is followed by the question particles na or angithi (marking a “tag” question).

The question-word adverbs njani and ngaphi can also act as verbs (“Where is she?” = “She wheres?”), in which case they take the subject prefixes above.

The Ndebele nouns given here are marked by the prefix um- in the singular and aba- in the plural.

1. (a) Yes, they want to see. (b) How is the boy learning to sew? (c) Where are we? (d) I am cooking tea.

2. (a) Unjani umntwana? (b) Sifunda ukupheka angithi? (c) Yebo, bayakhuluma. (d) Bafuna ukubona ubabana?
(C) Here is One Hand (1/1) [20 Points]

(H) Can you know / Hanunó'o? (1/1) [15 Points]

Hanunó'o is an abugida that, unusually, reads bottom to top rather than top to bottom. By default, full letters represent consonants + a. Lines above or below the letter change the vowel to i or u. A curved line to the bottom right of the letter (padmudpod) represents the absence of a vowel. Note that a and i on their own have their own letters, ĩ and ĵ.
